"I am much like a flower now," says Flora.

"I am Flora, the flower pig."

"You are my piggy, Flora," says her mom,

"but I wish you could enjoy a fascinating shower one day."

One day, Flora is taking a flower shower. And she finds a garland of flowers on a bush. She is curious, so she goes into the bushes. It looks dark and a little bit scary. "Flowow," says Flora, "It might be interesting."

Flora then goes on and on and on until she meets another pig — a different pig, in a meadow.

"Pigs love showering," says one of the dotted piggies, "let's enjoy the grassland and become dotted clean."

"Flowow," says Flora, "it might be fascinating." So there she takes her first grass shower.

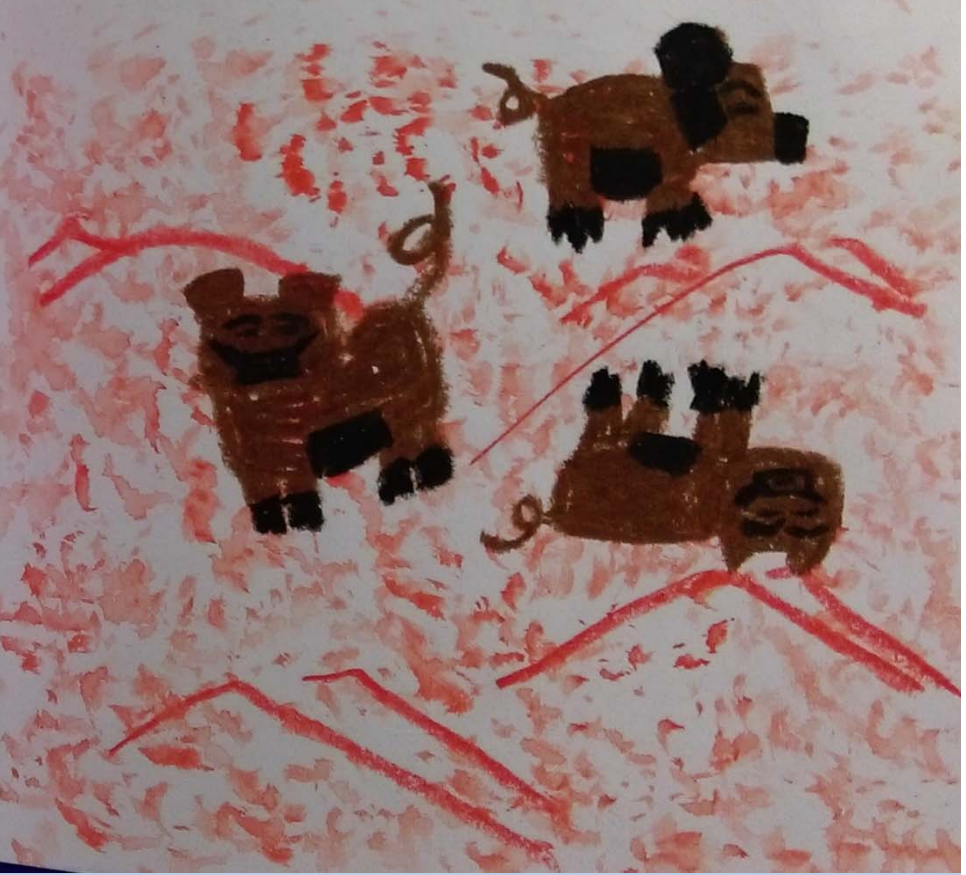

Flora then goes on and on and on until she meets another pig — a different pig, in a desert.

"Pigs love showering," says one of the bronzy piggies, "let's enjoy the sunshine and become bronzy clean."

"Flowow," says Flora, "it might be fascinating." So there she takes her first sunshine shower.
