Book Title: Peggy's Ordinary Day

Author: Lillian Huang

Introduction:

Peggy's Ordinary Day is about the daily life of a second-grade girl, Peggy, who is the only child in the family. Every day she comes home, she looks at the clock and counts. Although she does not have any sibling to play with, she knows exactly how to entertain herself before the clock strikes seven.

This book is for the only child in every family. From seeing how Peggy's daily life is, he/she will realize that he/she is understood—it is okay to feel upset and lonely, but one can always cheer oneself up by doing things one likes. Also, children can learn about time by counting the clock with Peggy.

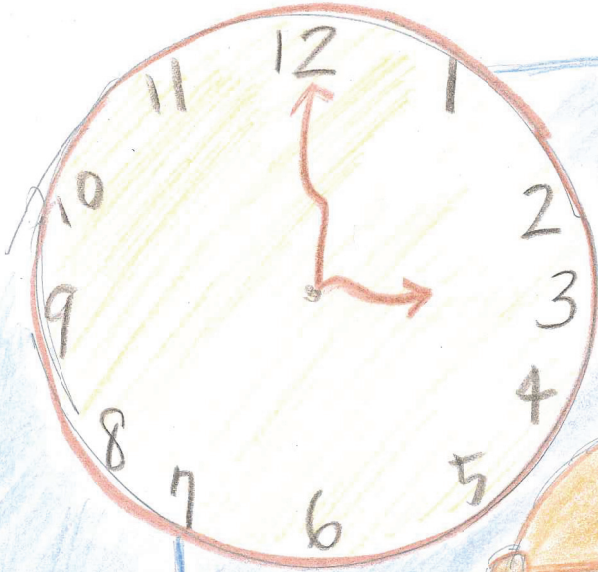

On the other hand, this book is for parents as well. By understanding the situation of the only child being alone in the house, parents may feel the sense of loneliness their child has and the importance of spending time with him/her. Moreover, perhaps Peggy's story may give parents a chance to consider whether some changes should be done in the family.

Peggy has got home from school.

One. Two. Three. Four.

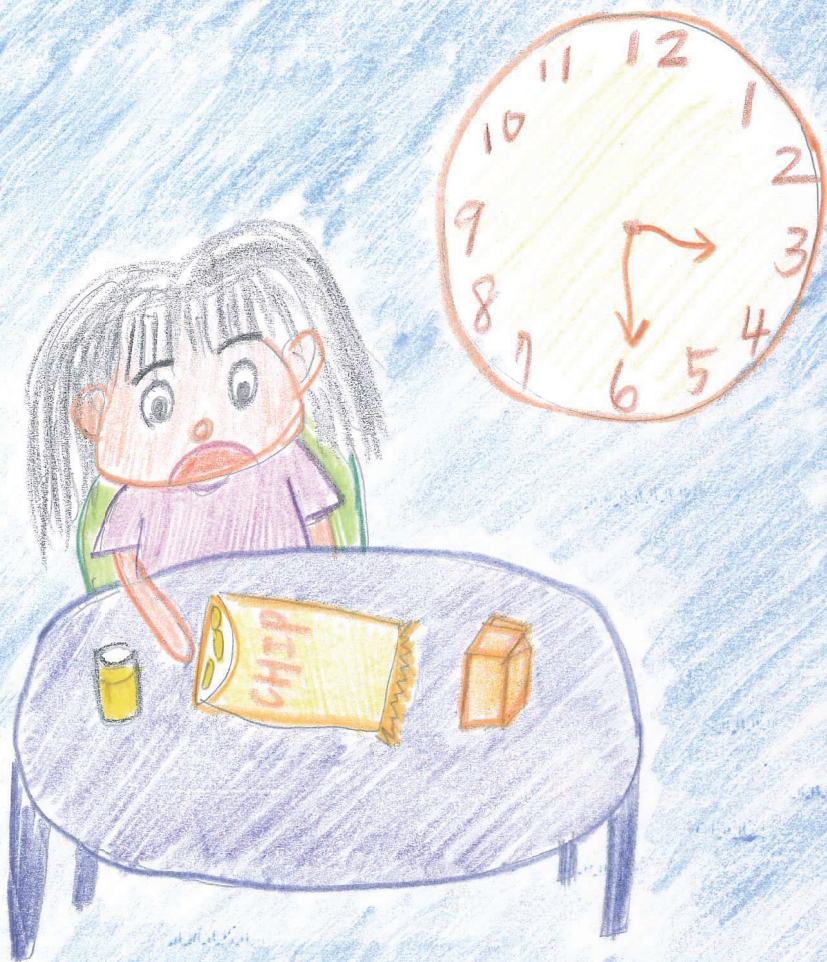

Four hours left.

She always opens the fridge, looking for a snack.

Maybe a glass of soda with a pudding? What about a chicken leg?

Today, she chooses juice
and a bag of chips.

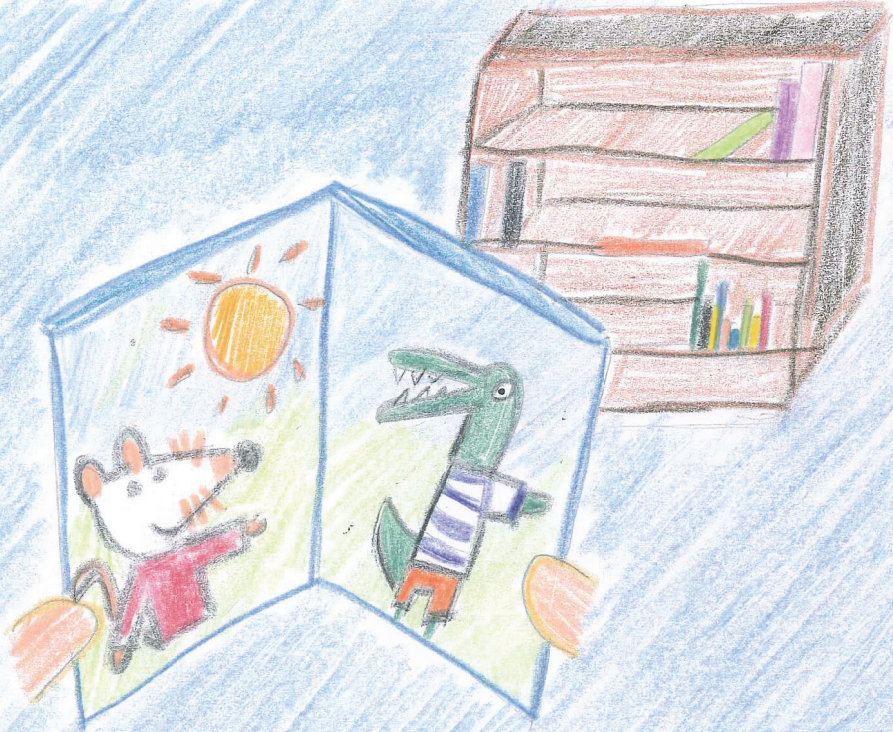

Hmm... I think the flavor
I ate two days ago
was better.

Then, she plays with her toys.

Miss, you egg is almost done.
Just a minute!

She also reads a book about her favorite character—Maisy.

What is Maisy going to do today?

Toy bricks

I think the triangle one should be on top.

and rock-paper-scissors
are her favorite as well.

You win this time,
Left hand!

But, toy train is the toy Peggy likes most.

I hope I can get a yellow one on my BIRTHDAY.

Beep.

Ah! It's four o'clock.

So that is one, two, three.

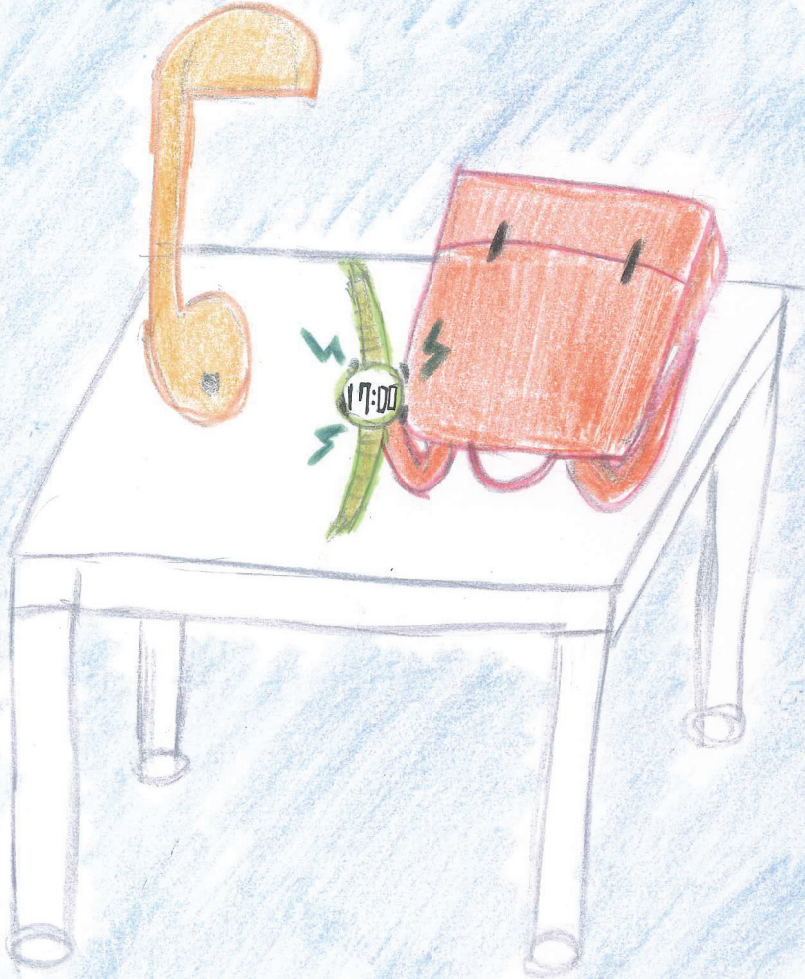

Three hours left.

After playing with her toys, she likes wearing her mother's dresses and heels and pretends to be a celebrity.

Today I will be Jolin!

Beep.

Oh no! It's five o' clock already.

I haven't done
my homework yet.

I spent too much time choosing the outfit.

So, Peggy rushes to the desk and starts writing her homework.

Fifty minus twenty-eight is...

However, you know,
it is impossible for a little girl
to concentrate for more than half an hour.

So, Peggy rests on the couch and turns on the TV.

Hooray! My favorite cartoon!

Resting for a while, Peggy finds that she's hungry again. After all, she has not eaten any food since three o' clock, and that's three hours ago.

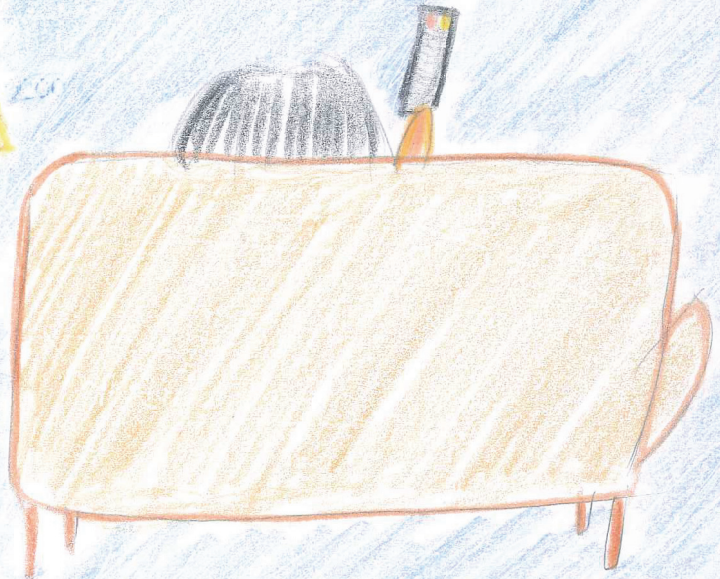

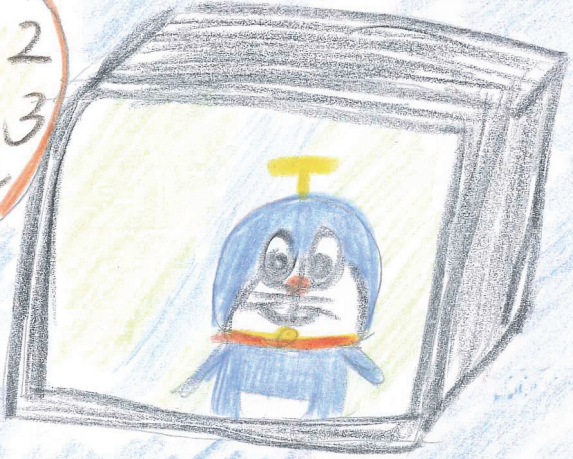

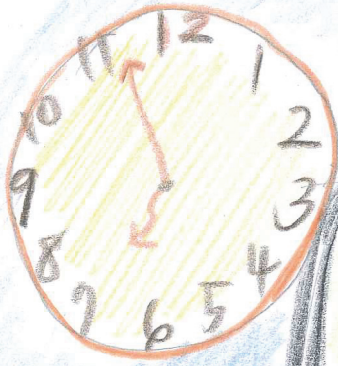

What about having a pudding? I have wanted to eat it since this afternoon.

However, she knows that it's almost the time.

I think I will wait.

Hang in there, stomach!

So, she waits.

Maybe I'll forget the hunger by watching TV.

Ding. Ding. Ding.

The clock strikes.

It's seven o' clock!

Finally, after four hours'
waiting, Peggy's Mom comes home.

Peg, I'm home.

Mommy!!

They have dinner together and Peggy shares what she did in school today.
